RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was still falling yesterday. Last evening there were large 6 feet water in the canal. It raine i nearly all day yesterday.

The James Montgomery .- This spleudid steamer arrived from New Orleans yesterday, and we are under many obligations to Messrs. Lowry and Wilkes for late papers and copies of the manifest and mem randum. The Montgomery is advertised to leave for New Orleans this evening. She has fine accommodations and her commander, Captain Sam. Mostgomery, is one of the best ou the Western

The flue steamer Fanny Bullitt, Capt. Dunham,dil not get off yesterday, but will positively leave at 10 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Actelope is the next boat due from New Orleans. The Empress left New Orleans last Saturday and the Republic arrived on that day. The Chancellor has turned back from Evansville.

The Diamond has withdrawu from the Evansville trade and laid up for want of business. Her trip will be taken to-day by the Statesman, which leaves for the Wabash. Captain Sutton, an experienced Wabash pilot and a very worthy man, will cour-

It will be seen from a card in our steamboat column that the mailboat company will shortly establish a regular tri-weekly line between this port and St. Louis. The boats comprising the line are the While the bright gens of friendship and tenderness true, Moses McLellan, Highflyer, and Fashion. They Shall lie thickly beneath, though they're hidden from St. Louis. The boats comprising the line are the are all undergoing thorough repair.

The Dove will leave for the Kentucky river. The New Orlcans Truc Delta, of the 2d, has the following under the head of steamboat news:

Cotton again is King, and a right royal levee he held yesterday morning on the levee. Over fifteen cotton boats were discharging cargo and piling up—not imaginary agonies—but substantial, weighty cotton bales, requiring the aid of several thousand stout arms. The receipts up to 4 P. M. yesterday are nearly 12,000 bales, and about 6,000 more had come on Sunday, making an aggregate of about 18,-009 bales. There also was a great activity mani-fested on the sugar landing, and nearly everywhere else on the levee.

The captains of the St. Louis boats now The captains of the St. Louis boats now in port held a meeting last Sunday on board the W. M. Morrison, to take into consideration the low prices of freight. We did not learn the precise nature of the proceedings, but we understand that an advanced tariff of freights was adopted, and we hope that all parties concerned will hold together and not abate in their just demands. The Louisville steamboatmen would willingly follow suit, were it not for the fact that several of the upper Ohio river boats now in port would step in and take all freight offered at the present low price. ed at the present low price.

We find the following in the Vicksburg Whig: The steamer Jacobs, which sunk on her late downward trip from Grenada, at Tuscahoma landing, had on board a full freight of cotton. The most of the cotton was picked up by the Hope, which was be-

THE BANK BILLS IN THE LEGISLATURE .- OR Monday Mr. Kelsey, of Owen, introduced an amendment to the Bank bills ostensibly to restrict the banks in their charges on bills. Instead of reducing, this amendment really increases the charges on all foreign bills except such as are "payable in adjoining States." Under this "amendment" the banks may, for example, charge one per cent. exchange on a four months' bill on New York, while their present unrestricted charge is but half per cent! When it is remembered that a very large part of the foreign bill business of the banks is in bills on New York, the full value of the services of Mr. Kelsey in "restricting bank charges" will be understood and appreciated. Some how or other the banks must have got on the blind side of Mr. Kelsey!

PRESBYTERIAN CONVENTION.—The Presbyterian Convention of Ministers and Elders from the four Old School Synods of Cincinnati, Kentneky, Indiana, and Northern Indiana, called to consider and act in reference to the state of religion in their bounds, assembled at Cincinnati last night. The exercises will be devotional and deliberative. The opening sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. E. P. Humphrey, MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S FURS are now selling at of Danville, Ky.

MUSICAL FUND SOCIETY .- This association, but ecently organized in this city, gave their first concert in the large hall of the Masonic Temple last night. The evening was a most inclement one, yet the large hall was well lilled, and the gratification afforded by the entertainment was more than a recompense to the andience. Indeed, the Society must consider itself highly complimented, for few oceasions could have drawn together such an assemblage.

The Society was assisted in vocal music by Mr. and Miss Coiliere, Miss Scheidler, and Mr. Mason, and also by Mr. Dolfinger, who is a member. The trio from Ernaui by Miss Scheidler and Messrs. Mason aud Dollinger, aud the scene from Il Trovatore by Miss Scheidler and Mr. Dolfinger were indeed gems, and were received with rapturous applause. Mr. Colliere sung an aria and a comic song in his best vein.

The performances of the Society really astonished us. We had no idea that so much fine musical talent had been permitted to lie dormant so long. Mr. G. Zoller is the director, and high praise is due him for the manner in which he has succeeded in perfecting the members. We understand they have been practising only about six weeks. They numbered last night forty, and more than three-fourths are amateurs. All their pieces were given with fine effect. They consisted of an overture from Weigl, parts from Mozart's Symphonia, Gungl's Polka Najaden, an overture from Rossini, waltzes by Lanner, and Rossiui's overture from Tancrede. All the pieces were warmly applauded, the polka was vociferously encored, and the overture would have met with a like approbation had it not been the last piece, and the hour at which the concert closed near 11 o'elock.

We congratulate the association and its accomplished director, Mr. Zoller, on their complete success, and hope ere long to have the pleasure of hearing them agaiu.

ACQUITTED .- Our readers may remember that about two years ago Joseph R. I'ratt, of Jeffersonville, lud., killed a man named Wm. Miller in that vicinity, who had been one of his tenants. At a former trial the jury could not agree. A second trial was commenced in the Clark Circuit Court, sitting at Charlestown, on Friday, which terminated by the jury rendering a verdict of "not guilty" yesterday morning, after being out about fifteen hours.

The counsel for defendant were Hon. W. P. Thomasson, of this city, and Judge Otto, of New Albany, both able men. The State was represedted by Mr. Brown, of New Albany, Prosecuting Attorney. We have heard Mr. B. highly complimented for the manner in which he conducted this case.

A SONG FOR MY BROTHER. A song for my brother, a song of glee! That shall be to him a symbol of me; That shall chase from his brow that furrow of care—

That shall laugh in his ear when I am not there; That shall whisper to him that I'm merry and free-Then a song for my brother, a song of glee!

A song for my brother, a song of glec! Whose light-flowing measures, like waves of the sea, Which merrily dance, tho' with rich treasure fraught Shall be freighted - not burdened - with treasures thought;

A song for my brother, a song of glee Whose thick-woven words, like the leaves of a tree, So closely shall cluster, as scarce to reveal The bright fruit beneath, which they strive to conceal From the strange passer-by, who but rarely perceives How much there is hidden beneath the green leaves.

A song for my brother-oh, would that with me Were the power to render that song of glee— That my dormant fancy might plume her wing, And, joyously rising, might sour and sing-In the buoyaut air and the sunshine free, A song for my brother-a song of glee!

HAYES & CRAIG'S.

The New York parers give the full proceedings of the lower House of Congress on Friday night. which all nearly two columns, but comprise nothing except motions to adjourn, calls of the year and nays, questions of order, appeals from the decision of the chair, &c. The following is a brief sketch of

At 10 o'clock on Friday evening the yeas and nays had been taken twelve times, showing the opponents of the Administration's measure to be in the rasjority, if the voting on Mr. Harro's motion is to be taken as a test vote, which seems to be the case. The state of the question was this Mr. Hughes, of Indiana is supporter of the Administration), first moved the reference of the President's Kansas measures, of things to a committee without instructions. Mr. Harris, of things (opposition), then offered a resolution to refer the message, with instructions, to a select committee of hirteen. The Speaker decided that Mr. Harris Smotion was an amendment to Mr. Hughes's resolution, which ruling Mr. Harris accepted and called for the previous question. At this point the real conflict of parties commenced.

Mr. Clingman, of North Carolina, immediately moved an adjournment. The motion was voted down. Motions for a call of the House, for the ayes and unys upon every trivial motion, and similar parliamentary tactics followed from the supporters of the Administration and was severed the Administrati parliamentary tactics followed from the supporters of the Administration, and were continued up to 6 o'clock this morning. In all these motions there was a decisive though varying majority against the Administration, though the vote on Mr. Harris's resolution could not be reached in consequence of the iteration of motions for the ayes and mays, and the success or failure of that resolution depended almost entirely upon the respective powers of physical endurance possessed by the contestants. It was made clear however that at present the supporters of the

At midnight, the Speaker being worn out, called Mr. Boeock of Va. to the chair. The sixteenth vote was taken at that time and was on a motion for the call of the House. It was carried; 142 yeas, 19 nays. The appearance of the House at that time was represented by the call of the House. It was carried; 142 yeas, 19 nays. The appearance of the House at that time was remarkable. The members worn out and nays. The appearance of the House at that time was remarkable. The members, worn out and sleepy, were stretched along the sofa or reclining on the seats and desks. There were about a hundred spectators in the gallery, among whom was a lady, apparently taking a deep interest in the scene below. At one o'clock another vote was taken on a motion to adjourn; nays 102, nyes 76. Then a call of the House was demanded and 185 members responded. At two o'clock a disgraceful scene occurred on the floor, of which Mr. Keitt, of South Carollina, was the instigator.

red on the floor, of which Mr. Keitt, of South Carollina, was the instigator.

Mr. Quitman, taking advantage of the calm that succeeded, moved that "all motions now pending since the call for the previous question on the amendment of Mr. Harris, of Ill., should be withdrawn, and that a vote should be then taken on sustaining the demand for the previous question, and if carried, the House would adjourn till Monday, and that at one o'clock on that day a vote should be taken on the main question." Mr. Harris, of Illinois, was in favor of the proposition; but objections being made, the Chair said be could not entertain it as it required unanimous consent. And in this frame the House continued up to six o'clock, when the motion carried.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

The prominence of the fact of the pany or there is no hope for him. He seems to rely very much upon the amount of names he has to his petition, and their age and preminence. Every one understands how easy it is to get names to a petition. Any accommodating citizen will sign a petition for a friend. They sign it without reflecting what effect it may have upon others, especially when the interest of the laboring man is concerned. Look at the numerous petitions presented to Congress almost daily to divide the Union and set the negroes free. These petitions are signed by thousands of prominent citizens. But you will notice no names on the list who would be directly affected by granting the wisher of the petitioners. So it is in tase. We have talked with several who say they would never have signed the petition if they had reflected upou the disadvantages of such a monopoly to the whole community, or the design of the parties desiring the charter. "Another Mechanic" takes the ground that this monopoly will reduce the price of building materials. Who ever heard of a monopoly reducing the price of articles? Don't every man's experience tell nim that they fatten at the expense of the communities, and build up the few at the expense of the communities, and build up the few at the expense of the namy. The reader will please think of all the monopolies within his knowledge, and he will agree with me.

But why should they, after doing so well, by the aid of the mechanics to a great extent, be so avaricious as to wish to override them with a mon poly for the purpose of carrying on the manufacturing business in all its branches, and building houses, and working in metals The fact of Breeden & Garnett being unfortunate, and losing by fire, should not entitle them to all these incorporate privileges. They are able to compete with any in an individual way. Why give them any special privileges. Then are able to compete with any in an individual way. Why give them any special privileges then? "Another Mechanic" gets out one original idea. This shows the bent of his mind—jealousy. He says he will venture the assertion that the possess of Cincinnati would give a hundred thousand. ple of Cincinnati would give a hundred thonsand dollars to insure the defeat of this enterprise. Why, this fellow is venturesome enough to build a planing mill on private capital, and he would do it no doubt but he has some deep plot; wants a big price for timber land, or something of the kind; and to gain his point he will puff himself and belittle his neighbors and excite Salowies. He stops at nothing. nis point he will puff himself and belittle his neighbors and excite jealonsies. He stops at nothing, but is willing to make any assertiors, regardless of any interest but his own if he wants to sustain himself before the public. Why did he not publish the act and allow the citizens to know what he wanted. I think I have answered more than deserves answering in this communication of "Another Mechanic." MECHANIC.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] Exciting Scene—A Free Fight—The Battle Begun-The Kansas Question, etc.

Exciting Scene—A Free Fight—The Earlie Ecgun—
The Kansus Question, etc.

Washington, Feb. 6.

For the first time this session, the House of Representatives yesterday were engaged in a coutest, the success of which depended upon physical endurance, apart from numerical strength.

The President's Kansus message was pending, and Mr. Harris, of Illinois, moved to refer it to a Select Committee of litheen members, to raquire into all the facts attending the formation of the Lecompton constitution, with power to send for persons and papers. He moved the previous question to stop debate and bring the House to a direct vote. The triends of that constitution objected to the application of the "gag," as it is cometimes called, and begun to make motions to adjourn; to excuse certain members from voting; for a call of the House, etc., the tactics rarely resorted to by parliamentarians to resist the taking of a question pending the consideration of a weighty subject, such as that before Congress.

Good humor prevailed throughout the proceedings until half-past 2 o'clock this morning, when the House was startled by a scrimmage between Mr. Keitt, of South Carolina, and Mr. Grow, of Penraylvania—the one a fire-eating Democrat, the other as ardent on the Freesoil side of the controversy. It appears that Mr. Keitt commenced the affray, and on such occasions it takes but little to get up a "good sized" fight. It was not many seconds before the friends of these parties pitched in. From my favorable position in the gallery, I had a fine view of the disgraceful proceedings. At least a dozen honorables became involved in the battle, striking their thows right and left with an earnestness worthy of the most accomplished puglists, but with not an equal amount of skill! North and South were thus engaged in a recontre which must tell badly for Congressional morals. The Speaker promptly sought to restore order, imperatively calling to his aid the Sergeant-at-Arnis of the House, who rushed into the midst of the fight and materially assiste the affray.* The utmost excitement prevailed, and it was feared that the fisticut's would become general, and that things more deadly than men's doubled hands would be brought into requisition. But happily this was not the case. Some of the members were "half-cocked," but not their fire-arms. I have seen many personal conflicts, but none more exciting than this, and none where as large a number of members took part. The members had been nearly "fagged ont" with the tmportant business of listening to the roll calls and responding to their names—the majority of them had been dozing in their seats or on the settees outside the bar of the House. But this lamb-like condition of things was soon changed into the hierceness of the tiger. They were soon "all alive" and on their feet, and "fready for the 'fray."

It certainly was not designed to have a "free tight," but one was certainly afforded. After the dreadful, stormy times, there was a dead calm. No apologies were offered for the breach of order, nor is it certain any will be made. I learn this morning, however, that Mr. Kiett regrets the occurrence. He is socially a good fellow, brave and generous, but his ardent temperament led him into this folly. Would that not only his zeal, but that of all others, were tempered by discretion; especially is this desirable in the members of Congress of both branches. It may be interesting to know that none of the sons of "Old Kentuck" took a hand in this "scrimmage," or fight, or miniature battle. The Palmetto and the Keystone originated the disgrace.

or fight, or miniature battle. The Palmetto and the Keystone originated the disgrace.

This was the first proceeding of the kind in the beautiful new Ilall of Representatives, which was now inaugurated to fisticuffs.

The House was in session continuously eighteen hours and a half. The members were continually gripned and comping from the reference continually France.—The attempted assassination of the Emperor had been the all-engrossing topic of the week. The day following the event addresses were made to the Emperor by representatives of the Corps Diplomatique, of the Senate, the Legislative body, the Council of State, &c., congratulating him and the Empress upon their escape. Some of the officials in their addresses hinted that the English government should be called upon to expel those refugees who abused her hospitality by organizing in their retreat plans of destruction and perfecting their conspiracies. The Emperor, in reply to the great bodies of the State, expressed his firm confidence and reliance in their support and devotion. He added that at the same time he was resolved to adopt such measures as might be deemed advisable, but should not depart from that path of firmness and moderation which he had hitherto followed.

The French journals had joined in the cry for the expulsion of the conspirators from Europe, and the Paris correspondent of the Times says it was positively stated that a communication had been made by the French Minister in London to the English Government demanding the expulsion from England of five political refugees, one or two Italian and the rest French.

The projectiles employed were of the most formidable kind, and it is said that not less than 20 of them were meant to be used. Five minutes previous to the explosions, an Italian named Pierri, who was expelled from France in 1852, was recognized by the police, and arrested. He was armed with a six barrelled revolver and a dagger, and was the learer of a bomb similar to those exploded. Opening of the French Legislature.- The opening

Opening of the French Legislature.—The opening of the Legislature took place ou the 18th instant, and the Emperor delivered a comparatively lengthy speech upon the occasion. After dwelling npon local matters, comprising allusions to the internal progress of the country, financial and military and naval affairs, he proceeded as follows:

"The establishments of our arsenals are occupied with the alterations which are so necessary in the structure of ships. Our navy upholds on every sea the honor of our flag. In China it combats, in concert with the English fleet, to obtain redress for common injuries, and to avenge the blood of our Missionaries who have been cruelly massacreed. The relations of France with foreign powers have never been better than at present. Our old allies, faithful to the sentiments arising out of our common cause, display toward in the same confidence as before; display toward ns the same confidence as before; and the new ones, by their good offices and loyal co-operation upon all great questions, would almost cause us to regret that we had combated against

"I have been enabled to convince myself, at Osborne as at Stutigart, that my desire to preserve the closeness of former ties, and also my wish to form new ones, were equally participated in by the Chiefs new ones, were equally participated in by the Chiefs of two great Empires. If the policy of France is appreciated in Europe as it deserves, it is because we have the good sense to meddle only with questions which directly concern us, whether as a nation or as a great European Power. I have, therefore, abstained from interfering in the question of the Duchies, by which Germany is at present agitated; for that purely German question will continue to be such so long as the integrity of Denmark shall not be threatened. If on the other hand I have occupied myself with the affairs of Neufchatel, it is because the King of Prussia had asked for my good offices, and I was so happy on that occasion as to contribute to the definite conclusion of a dispute which might have become dangerous to the repose

The reason is, that the disinterested policy of France has always led her to favor, as far as treaties permir, the desires of those Peoples who turn their eyes towards her. Nevertheless, the Conferences about to be held at Paris will permit us to exercise a spirit of conciliation calculated to lessen the difficulties inseparable from divergencies of opinion.

"Such, gentlemen, is a rapid sketch of our situation, and here I might terminate my discourse. But I think it is well at the opening of a new Legislature to examine with you where we stand, what we desire. Only those causes which are well defined and clearly expressed create profound convictions; only those nuturied standards which are carried high income desires income development.

"What is the Empire? Is it a government hostile to enlightenment, seeking to depress generous impulse, and to prevent the elaboration in a pacific manner of all that is good and civilizing in the principles of 186? No. The Empire has written its brinciples at the head of its constitution; it has frankly adopted all which can entable the heart and excite the soul for good; but at the same time it is the cremy of all abstract theory—it aims at a power that shall be strong, camble of vanquishing the obstacles which may impede its march; for we must not forget that the advance of every new power must for a long time be a struggle. Besides, it is a truth written on every page of the history of Franca and England, that therty without restraint (entrave) is impossible as long as there exists in the country an obstinate faction which denies the fundamental basis of the government. For then liberty, instead of enlightening, controlling, amelierating, becomes in the hands of parties merely a lever to overturn. Thus, as I have not accepted the power of the nation in order to acquire an ephemeral pollarity, the deceitful price of concessions extotted from weakness, but in order to deserve the approbation of posterity by founding something darable in France, I do not fear to say to you that, whatever may be said, the present danger does not lie in the excessive prerogatives of power, but rather in the absence of repressive laws.

"Thus the late elections, notwithstanding their rogatives of power, but rather in the absence of repressive laws.

"Thus the late election, netwithstanding their satisfactory result, have in certain hoolines offered an afflicting spectacle; conflicting parties have taken advantage of them to agitate the country, and we have seen some men boldly avowing themselves enemies of our national institutions, deceive the electors, and, having obtained their votes by false promises, repudiate them with disdain. You will not permit the repetition of such a scandal, and you will oblige every eligible candidate to take the oath to the Constitution before placing himself before the electors. The preification of men's minds should be the constant aim of our endeavors, and you will aid me to reduce every extreme and factious opposiressive laws aid me to reduce every extreme and factious opposi-

aid me to reduce every extreme and factious opposition to silence.

"Is it not painful in a country which is tranquil, prosperous, and respected in Europe, to see on one hand persons revile a government to which they owe the security they enjoy, and on the other, men abusing the free exercise of their political rights to undermine institutions accepted with eagerness by the nation? Let those who instigate troubles and organise plots know that their day is past.

"I cannot conclude without speaking to you of the criminal attempt which has juet taken place. I return thanks to heaven for the visible protection with which it has covered the Empress and myself, and I mourn that even one life should have been lost.
Nevertheless, these conspiracies teach more than

I mourn that even one life should have been lost. Nevertheless, these conspiracies teach more than one useful lesson. The first is that the parties who have recourse to assassination prove their weakness and impotence by the desperateness of their means; the second, that an assassination has never proved a success, has never served the cause of those who have armed the hand of the assassin. Neither those who struck down Cæsar, nor those who killed Henry IV., profited by the murder. God never permits the triumph of the cause of crime. Thus these attempts can neither trouble my confidence in the tempts can neither trouble my confidence in the present nor my faith in the future. If I live, the Empire will live with me; and should I fall, the Em-Empire will live with me; and should I fall, the Empire would even be confirmed by my death, for the indignation of the people and the army would farnish a new support to the throne of my son. Lit us then look forward to the future with confidence; let us proceed without anxious thoughts to our task—the good of all and the grandeur of the country. God protect France."

BURR'S PRESENCE OF MIND .- Col. T. B. Therpe furnishes the following reminiscence of the "imperturbable Burr'':

When in Louisville, Ky., some years since, I had the pleasure, a pleasure which I shall never forget, of meeting with Judge Rowan, one of the most remarkable men of his day. In a corn, sation of an evening, the Judge, among other reminiscences of early times, alluded to the arrest of Aaron Burr, on his arrival in Louisville, in charge of the United States authorities. Burr, for the time being, eccupied the pincipal room of the then fashionable hotel of the day, and was constantly surrounded by a crowd of visitors drawn together either by sympathy or curiosity. Among the persons present a crowd of visitors drawn together either by sympathy or curiosity. Among the persons present were Judge Rowan and Mr. Clay. As night drew on, the crowd outsile of the hotel, composed of the wild, patriotic sons of the West, became violent in their denunctitions of Burr, and so warm did this clamor become that many persons thought that Barr would be seized by the people and summarily dealt with. In the midst of the excitement almost every person immediately about Burr became more or less anxious for his safety, when Mr. Clay, then just in the opening of his brilliant career, with a politeness that he alone could assume, stepped up to Mr. Burr and said: "Sir, depend upon it, whatever may be the feeling outside, we, your friends present, will defend you." Burr, hardly half the stature of Mr. Clay, instantly assumed an air of dignity that rivaled that of "Harry of the West." His brilliant eyes flashed fire, and, stepping back, he replied: "I have never in my life, sir, heen placed under any circumstances where I could not defend myself."

Singular Story.—The following story, though short, is somewhat pithy, and its moral conveys a capital lesson to gentlemen who select servant girls out of a large crowd:

On Saturday, the 22d inst., Mrs. Mary S. Rich, agent of the Woman's Protective Emigration Society, arrived at the Western Depot from New York, in charge of between seventy and eighty young women—some twenty-five or thirty of whom were intended for this place. Early in the morning a married man of this city went to the depot and inquired for Mrs. Rich. The married man found Mrs. Rich. The married man found Mrs. Rich. The married man satisfied Mrs. Rich that he was all right, and that the servant girl would be well treated in his family. Mrs. Rich then asked the married man who he was. The married man that the servant girl would be well treated in his family. Mrs. Rich then asked the married man to walk into the room where the young women were. The the servant girl would be well treated in his family. Mrs. Rich then asked the married man to walk into the room where the young women were. The married man walked into the room. Mrs. Rich told the young ladies that the married man wanted a girl to do house work. One of the young ladies then walked up to the married man and said, "I'll go with this gentleman; I've lived with him before; he's my husband." Somebody was very much astonished when the young lady found her husband, and another somebody looked very pale when the married man found his first wife. When the young lady saw her husband enter the room—

the young lady saw her husband enter the room "With wild surprise,
As if to marble struck, devoid of sense,
A stupid monument, motionless she stood," And when she crossed the room, and said- 'He's my husband,'

"They moved not, But, like dumb statues, or breathtess stones, Stared on each other and looked deadly pale.".

But when the young lady saw her husband was too much astonished to articulate a single sentence, she said, in tones of melting tenderness, "My dear Thomas, what made you leave me five years ago, without saying good-bye? And why didn't you let me know you were living in such a beautiful place as Bloomington? If I had only known you were here I would have come a long time ago." Tradi-

Ex-Gov. Morton, of Massachusetts, and his con, are both members of the Legislature, as they were of the constitutional convention of 1855. A Boston paper has the following incident connected with the election of the sergeant-at-arms: The clerk was calling the roll—"Marcus Morton!" "Yes!" responded the av. Governor, clearly but tather feely calling the roll—"Marcus Morton!" "Yes!" responded the ex-Governor, clearly but rather feebly, near the chair. "Marcus Morton, Jr.!" called the clerk. Stampede in a Court Room.—The New York papers say that on Monday last, in the police court at Brooklyn, an Irishman was brought in for sentence for some offense of which he had been convicted. As he stood there among other prisoners awaiting sentence, it was noticed that the small pox was breaking out on him with great virnlence. Immediately a general stampede took place, the clerk turned ghastly pale, and leaped out of the window; the judge, thinking the building was about to turnle about his ears, tumbled out of the window after the clerk, while the deputy sheriff and some other officers got out of the way of infection by climbing among the rafters. The Irishman was got out of doors, and was told to scud and never return. The extra-judicial sentence "Pat" availed himself of with due alacrity. The court stood adjourned that day, no one ventring back into the room.

Serious Affair.—Our village has been the scene of some considerable excitement for several days past, from charges having been preferred against a lady of high respectability in our community for inhumanly burning a little girl of twelve years of age with a hot iron, and otherwise ill-treating her, but as the matter is yet to undergo a judicial investigation we correct for the present from making any tion we forbear for the present from making any statement of the circumstances. The requisite ex-amination has been necessarily deferred on account of the illness of the defendant when the process was served upon her a day or two ago.

Family Sewing Machines.

101 Fourth street,

BETWEEN MARKET AND JEFFERSON! ouisville, lay.

WE OFFER TO THE PUBLIC WHEELER & WILSON'S IMPROVED SEWING MACHINE with increased confidence in its merits as the best and in streliable Family sewing Machine new in use. It sews equally well on the thickest or thinnest fabrics, makes the backstitch impossible to nuravel, with the escential advantage of being alike on both siles, forming no ridge nor chain on the under side, is simple in construction, more speedy in movement, and more durable than any other machine.

We give full instruction to enable the purchaser to sew ordinary seams, sitich, hem, fell, quift, gather, bind, and tuck, all on the same machine, and warrant it for three years. june2 dec3 b&jtf A. SUMNER & CO.

The undersigned would take this method of returning his thanks to his friends and the public generally for the liberal patronage he has received during the past 10 years. Having resumed business, he may he found, for the present, at the Show-Case Factory, No. 314 Green street, between Third and Fourth, adjoining his old stand, where all orders for FAINTING, GLAZING, &c., will be promptly attended to at p ices to suit the times.

DESTRUCTION OF LIQUOR (?) AT HARWICH .- The DESTRUCTION OF LIQUOR (?) AT HARWICH.—Ine citizens of Harwich, at their annual town meeting last Monday, voted that the liquor agency in that town be discontinued, and that the liquor at present on hand be sold to the physician for medical purposes.

The physician, however, refused to purchase the article, on the ground that it was of such inferior quality as to be utterly unfit for use, and such as be would not prescribe; it was then voted that the whole be publicly burned in presence of the citizens, and a committee was appointed to execute the vote in the public square on Tuesday at 11 A. M. The members of the committee, in proceeding to the performance of their duty, found that they had a new difficulty to encounter, which was no more nor less than the incombustible nature of the article which they were deputed to destroy.

they were deputed to destroy.

At this juncture an expedient was suggested, which fortunately enabled them to carry their plans into execution. A quantity of pure alcohol, which had also been kept at the liquor agency for mechanical purposes, was mixed with the vile stuff sufficiently to cause it to ignite, and enable the committee to execute their duries to the satisfaction of mittee to execute their duties to the satisfaction of Brigham Young's Portrait.—Among the paintings now exhibited in the rotunda is a portrait of Brigham Young, the renowned Apostle of Mormonism. The portrait is said to be painted from life, and represents the modern Mahommed as a decidedly good looking man. His face has much of the peculiar expression seen among Yankees "away down east." looking man. His face has much of the peculiar expression seen among Yankees "away down east," and resembles somewhat the good humored physiognomy of Josh Silsbee, whom your theatre-going readers have often seen. His complexion is fair, inclining to ruddy—his eyes blue—his nose long and straight—his lips thin and closely compressed, and about his cheeks, eyebrows, and chin the flesh hangs loose and flabby, indicating sensuality. His face is smoothly shaven, and his halr, which is of chestnut brown color, and inclined to curl, is long, and seems to be carefully kept. The expression of the portrait would indicate firmness approximating mulish obstinacy. As might be expected, the portrait excites much interest and comment. much interest and comment.

Human Freight.—Two men came down in the "stock train" of the New York and Erie Railroad, Monday morning, duly labelled and described as freight. The regular freight label was attached to both, filled up as follows: "Freight 300 lbs.—$8 50; from Dunkirk to New York." The men being too poor to pay their way on, this was resorted to by some charitably disposed individual to perform a generons act and study economy at the same time. The exhibition caused considerable fun.

Benton. In Is large octave volumes of ahout 750 two-column pages.

This work has now reached the fourth volume, and Is giving great satisfaction among all classes. It will contain the wi dom of Congress for seventy years, and will be an luvaluable part of the listory of the country. It is of national interest, and one of the most valuable compendiums for public and private libraries ever issued. The work realizes a desideratum long felt, and of all others, for the political history of the Government, most wanted. Its wide range of characters, each one speaking for himself and representing his own party, and his far stretch of time, make it of the greatest value to the nation. The Indexing is very complete, so that any name or subject desired may be found in either volume at once.

Terms.—The work is publishing exclusively by subscription, and the volumes are issued at intervals of from 3 to 3 months. In cloth binding at $3; law sleep $3 50; half morocco $4; half califexira $4 50; each volume payable sudelivered.
